HOME OF VESTA FAMILY BURNED TO GROUND EARLY THIS MORNING

Blaze Starts From Overheated Chimney at Dwelling of Rousch Family

BUILDING OWNED BY A. DALE

Charleroi Fire Department Called to Scene, But Their Presence Avails Nothing—Rousch Family Cared For By Neighbors.

A five room dwelling at Vesta, owned by Allen Dale and occupied by Peter Rousch was destroyed by fire this morning, entailing a total loss in the house and contents of about $2,500. Some insurance was carried. The Charleroi fire department was called out, but could do nothing, the flames having practically eaten up the frame structure by the time of their arrival.

The fire started from an overheated chimney some time between 7 and 8 o'clock. The shingle roof caught from the chimney and it wasn't long until the whole house was ablaze. The Rousch family was unable to save their furniture, and lost practically everything.

A bucket brigade was formed from among Vesta and Dunlevy residents, and every effort bent to save as much as possible and to prevent the conflagration from spreading to two houses adjoining. Both these houses were scorched. The furniture was removed from both.

The Charleroi motor fire truck left here with most of the members of company No. 1 at about 9 o'clock, and made a quick trip to Vesta, only to find their presence of no avail.

The Rousch family was taken care of in the home of Nesley Donaldson. In the family are four children besides the father and mother. All were at home when the flames were discovered. The fire is one of the worst that has visited the Vesta vicinity in a long time.

TWO LOCAL YOUNG MEN NOT GUILTY OF CRIME

Evidence of Miscarriage of Justice Admitted in Discharge of James Shields and Kenneth Matson—Statements of Others Absolve Them

That there was a miscarriage of justice in an effort to fasten guilt for the holdup of Albert Saraffin, of Charleroi, has been admitted in the discharge of James Shields and Kenneth Matson from the workhouse, where they had been sentenced to imprisonment from 18 months to five years. The discharge was effected through a nol prossed new trial.

With James Rafferty and William Silence, the two men were arrested for the Saraffin robbery, and subsequently tried in court. The guilt of Rafferty and Silence was established first, and then a verdict of guilty was returned against Matson and Shields, though the jury was not entirely satisfied. Then both Rafferty and Silence made statements that convinced the district attorney that Shields and Matson were entirely innocent of the crime.

A movement for the new trial was made, and it was successful. Then the court nol prossed the case, which means dismissal, under certain conditions. The conditions apply technically to such matters of payment of costs and future behavior of the two. However if the conditions should be violated, it would only mean a new trial. Both Shields and Matson are now at home in Charleroi, and being heartily congratulated by their friends.

TRANSFER OF CARDON LICENSE IS REFUSED

Judge Irwin Denies Application for Change at Donora, Stating That Court Rules Must be Followed Out

Judge R. W. Irwin in a decision handed down late Monday afternoon, refuses to grant the transfer to C. C. Reeder, of Butler, of liquor license, granted at the last license court to C. F. Cardon, of the Irondale hotel, Donora. Reeder has made temporary arrangement to take over the hotel. The license is now held by Edgar L. Morse and the license granted Mr. Cardon dates from the beginning of license year, May 1. The refusal to grant the transfer and to grant a license to Mr. Reeder is simply because there is a court rule forbidding a transfer between terms of license court, except in very exceptional cases.

The hearing was held Monday before Judge R. W. Irwin. After hearing the testimony Judge Irwin stated that there was nothing in the act of assembly to prevent the transfer of a license at times when the regular license court was not in session, but as a rule of court had been made setting forth that no licenses would be transferred at any other time than at the regular session of license court, his decision in this case would be governed by advice from Judge McIlvaine, president judge.

The attorney who represented the applicants, stated that there had been one or two exceptions to this rule of court, and that in asking for this transfer he could assure the court that Mr. Cardon had no intention of trafficking in liquor licenses when he applied for the license. Mr. Morse, who now conducts the hotel, and Mr. Cardon both applied for a license for the same house. They got together, however, before license court was convened, and Morse withdrew his application. Cardon is the owner of the hotel and stated that, owing to ill health, he could not conduct the place and wished to sell it, as an article of agreement had been made with Mr. Reeder for several thousand

TRADING STAMP BILLS ALMOST PROHIBITIVE

If Passed in State as Introduced Companies Will be Practically Forced Out of Business---Fight Now On in Many Points

Two trading stamp bills, either of which would put stamp companies out of business in Pennsylvania are pending before the state legislature. The Stein act, introduced March 16, would allow stamp concerns to finish out what ever contracts they may have on hand at this time, but it forbids the organization of any new companies. Punishment for violation of the act is fixed at six months imprisonment and a fine not to exceed $1,000.

The Walton trading stamp bill, which passed its second reading in the house last week would compel a merchant to take out a license costing $2,000 from the county authorities before he would distribute trading stamps. Trading stamp concerns would be compelled to take out a $2,000 license in each county in which they operate. One fourth of the license money is to be paid to the state treasury and the rest is to be devoted to the upkeep of county bridges. Violation would be punishable by a fine of from $1,000 to $5,000 and not more than two years imprisonment.

There is a fight on in many points between advocates and antagonists of the trading stamp as a trade getter and a canvass of the city merchants is being made by committees to urge certain dealers not to use them in the future.

TULLY'S CAREER BROUGHT TO END

Young Pugilist Known Locally Dies After Brief Bout at Steubenville

most popular pugilists who ever fought here fought his last fight Monday, when he died at Steubenville, after a brief go with Clyde Sharp of Steubenville. Sharp was arrested and is being held under bond to await the action of the grand jury.

Tully and Sharp were to finish the main bout of the boxing show. As the bell rang, giving the signal for the first round, Sharp and Tully started after each other, exchanging body blows. Suddenly the men clinched and holding to one another for a few seconds broke away. At the same time each exchanged a blow, Tully sending a hard one to Sharp's head. Sharp sent a stiff blow to Tully's left side and the young pugilist fell to the floor. He died within a few minutes after being removed to the hospital. Physicians have not officially determined the cause of Tully's death, but it was probably due to heart disease. Tully was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Tully, of Pittsburg, and a popular young athlete.

His last battle was fought in Charleroi on March 6, when he battled in the semi-final of a show with Fritz Elsner, of Donora.

Many on Hand at Washington County Workings When Operations Begin

SUFFERING WILL BE ENDED

Last Rations Are Given Out on Saturday to Enable Men to Pack Buckets for Monday—Youngstown Gets Million Dollar Contract.

Employing 480 men, the Marianna mines were started on Monday with indications good for a continuance of operations until December. It is expected that by the end of this week fully 800 men will be at work there, and for the first time in months Marianna assumed a prosperous appearance.

More than 1,000 were on hand clamoring for jobs Monday morning, but H. T. Booker, resident manager of the Pittsburg-Buffalo company found himself unable to supply them all with work. He has more than enough men to fill the places at Marianna, and he said it would be useless for men to come from a distance for work.

Two sections of the mine are not in operation owing to water, but these will be put in condition. It is expected the mines will be in full operation next week, with 1,000 men at work. Marianna proper furnished only about 200, the balance having moved away.

It is expected that the starting of the Marianna mines will end the suffering there. Rations were handed out for the last time Saturday in order that men might have enough to pack their buckets for Monday. However, relief will be extended where there is sickness.

Marianna is not the only point where there are signs of prosperity. The Republic Iron and Steel company at Youngstown, Ohio, Monday let a contract to the H. Koppers company of Pittsburg for 92 biproduct coke ovens to the erected there at a cost of $1,000,000.

At Fairmont and Grafton, W. Va., coal mines are being started, and at the former place two new mines will be opened. Glass plants are being started at various points.

AUTO GOES OVER BANK; SLOTERBECK ESCAPES

Machine Rolls Nearly 100 Feet But Owner Falls Out Shortly After Car Leaves the Road.

J. P. Sloterback, a well known Fayette City hardware man and automobile dealer had a narrow escape from death opposite Monongahela late Monday night. He was driving his automobile along the road toward Webster, when it went over the bank. The bank is steep at this point and it started rolling over the hill. He fell from his seat, fortunately, and the machine kept on rolling 75 or 100 feet to the railroad tracks. Mr. Sloterback was unhurt save for a few bruises, but his machine was a wreck. He returned home on a night train.

RACE CULTIVATION

To maintain the highest degree of physical health, it must be accomplished by a healthy brain, one that can work out its own problems in early intercourse with the rest of mankind, and cooperate for the preservation of its own species. This is a law of nature, maintains the state health commissioner in his weekly chat.

The Teutonic writers have us believe that war is necessary to keep up the prosperity of a healthy nation, claiming that the whole scheme of nature is to live on itself. This, however, is a mistake. Cannibalism is rare and unnatural.

The self preservation of species means the united effort of individuals to that end. When one begins to live on one's self, death follows.

To modify a common but true saying, dog cannot eat dog. War kills off the healthy and breeds death.

In these days of advanced health measures, children should be taught to take plenty of out-door physical exercise, but it should not be brutal in character. Their sports should tend to cultivate control, temperate thoughts and kindnes.

As war brings pestilence the higher education should not teach the Teutonic interpretation of the laws of nature, but that it will lead to the self destruction of the species.

Wars must cease as man overcomes the brute side of his nature although he may be trained in the science of war without becoming brutal. In this twentieth century all questions between nations will have to be settled by international courts. The present war is counteracting the results of great health laws that have been enforced by spreading communicable disease and killing off the able bodied members of the belligerent nations.

To attain the highest degree of health, militarism must be crushed.

OLD-FASHIONED WINTER MYTH.

The "old-fashioned winter" myth, like "the good old times" notion, has been exploded. A New Englander has delved into the more of less musty records of that region and has discovered that winters back in the days of the Pilgrim fathers were very much like the winters we have been having right along. The first season of the Pilgrims was not, as traditionally supposed, exceptionally severe. There were frequent and heavy rains, light snows, but not extended periods of extreme cold. Doubtless the New England winter seemed severe to the arrivals from more tempered shores, which may acount for the bad name given to the winters of the new world, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Twenty years later they had a really severe winter and knew it by comparison and experience. But in 1644-5 the winter was "very mild, no snow lay, so ploughs might go the most part of the winter, but on February 16 there fell a great snow, making the ways impassable for three weeks." In 1699-1700 "the winter turned into summer, the ground being bare for the most part, but little snow and that faded away fast by the southerly gales."

Cumulative evidence is offered by a record of 128 winters, from 1780-81 down to 1907-08, which shows that there were 64 winters with an average temperature of 31 degrees and 64 with an average of 26. The average temperature for the entire period was 28.5 degrees. The table shows also that the warmer and colder winters was very fairly distributed, fluctuating no marked trend one way or the other. In the light of these observations from New England data, it appears, the "old-fashioned winter" myth is supposed to have its birth, it is important that there was nothing to it. Yet, just as this generation has the notion that the winters of its youth were more severe than those of today, the rising generation has the notion that the winters fashioned winters" of the present age.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

A traveling man just back from a trip in the west tells a story of a visit to a small town. He noticed there a moving gang moving a church from a location to a point a square distant.

"What are they moving that church for?" he asked a man who stood looking on.

"Well, stranger, I reckon I'm the person to tell ye. I'm the mayor of this here town and I'm fer law enforcement. The law says no saloon shall be nearer than 300 feet from a church. I gave them three days to move the church.

A traveling salesman tells of his visit to general store in Boston, where a woman was looking at some hats. "Have you nothing of a subdued mouse color?" she asked.

For a moment the salesman was staggered, but he recovered his breath and replied:

"No, madame, but we have some in enraged rat color."

Another woman in search of a certain kind of basket, made the salesman reach down every article of that nature on the shelves except two. Then she said, as she turned away: "I only came to look for one of my friends."

"Madame," said the weary salesman, "if you have the slightest idea that your friend is in either of the other two baskets I shall be pleased to take them down."

Lime Treatment in Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement concerning calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption):

"Under the systematic, continued and persistent regime of calcium assimilation, Van Gieson has seen a number of his patients improve, undergo an exudation or partial consolidation in the lung, which then resolving would appear to contribute to the walling off and closing of the lesions. Hand in hand with this course of events, the sputum clears up of tubercle bacilli, which finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Ethical medical journals seldom speak so positively about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many consumptives who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alterative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy for pulmonary tuberculosis and allied throat and bronchial affections, its healing power may in some measure be attributed to the manner in which this element is so combined with other ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person and it does not irritate the stomach.

Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. If your druggist is out of it, ask him to order, or send direct to

SOME DON'TS

For Stomach and Liver Sufferers

Don't take medicine for your Stomach ailments morning, noon and night, as usually such medicines only give temporary relief and simply digest the food that happens to be in the Stomach.

Don't permit a surgical operation. There is always danger in operations and in many cases of Stomach, Liver and Bowel trouble the knife can be avoided if the right remedy is tak. n in time.

Don't go around with that foul smelling breath caused by Stomach and Liver, to the discomfort of those you come in contact with.

If you are a Stomach sufferer, don't think you can not be helped; probably worse cases than yours have been permanently restored by Mayr's Wonderful Remedy.

Most Stomach ailments are mainly caused by a catarrhal condition. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy not only removes the catarrhal mucus, but allays the chronic inflammation and assists in rendering the entire alimentary and intestinal tract antiseptic, and this is the secret of its marvelous success.

We are on the home stretch. The time is drawing short---dangerously short for you Mr. Piano Buyer. We are selling pianos without any regard for price or terms. We will not allow a single piano to remain unsold. We will not refuse any reasonable offer. Name your own price and terms

MR. CASH PIANO BUYER

Make your dollars do double duty here. Imagine going into Tiffany's in New York and buyidg a $250 diamond for $100. Would you do it? Would you pick up a roll of money off the sidewalk? You save at least $150 by buying your piano here. Our proposition is simply this: We have decided to close out the entire stock at the wholesale price. Come in if you are going to buy for cash. You'll never regret it. The reputation of S. L. Woodward protects you. Get your piano now.

This great mammoth and tremendous clearance sale of Pianos is at the zenith of its success. Prices and terms are thrown to the four winds. This sale will go down in history as the most alarmingly sensational one of its kind ever held or conceived in the brain of man. dollars less than he had sold the place before, when he and his parties could not get together.

Dr. Lewis, the physician of Cardon, stated that Mr. Cardon had suffered a stroke of paralysis in 1902, and that his health had been below par since that time, and that he could not stand close application to business. Three character witneses from Butler were present to testify for Mr. Reeder. It was testified that he was capable of handling a licensed house, and Judge Irwin commented on his qualifications, but said that he would have to be governed by the advice of Judge McIlvaine. Mr. Reeder, on the stand, stated that he had clerked in a hotel in Butler for two years, and for five years had conducted a licensed hotel there. His license was refused when all the licenses in Butler county were refused a few years ago. A letter from the judge of Butler county was filed, but the contents were not read.

Well Known Busines Man of Monongahela Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia—One Son and Six Daughters Survive.

Following a few days illness of pneumonia, Charles Cocain, one of the most widely known residents of the Monongahela valley and for many years an active business man, died Monday morning at his home in Fourth street, Monongahela. He was 78 years of age. Some weeks ago Mr. Cocain suffered a stroke at his office but later recovered and had been about as usual. A few days ago he contracted a heavy cold which developed into pneumonia.

Before the days of steamboats Mr. Cocain came to the Monongahela valley and floated flat boats of coal to the southern markets. He was also a prominent coal operator for a number of years. In 1877 the family moved to Iowa which was the place of residence for a few years. Later Mr. Cocain and his family returned to the Monongahela valley and for the past 30 years he had conducted a draying and general hauling business there. He was a charter member of Monongahela Lodge No. 455, B. P. O. E. and a member of the Star West lodge, K. of P. of Webster.

Mr. Cocain leaves one son and six daughters, Frank Cocain, Mrs. David Ramsey and Mrs. Robert Byers, all of Monongahela; Mrs. Walter Cunningham, Donora; Mrs. William Dunmire, South Fork and the Misses Margaret and Pearl Cocain, at home. There also survive nine grandchildren, one of them Harry Cocain, having made his home with his grandfather. One brother, Thomas Cocain, of Fayette City, and one sister, Mrs. Sarah Wall, of Youngwood, also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in the Monongahela cemetery.
